'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Proponents of a more adequate storm sewer for Richmond played an ace in the hole with the aid of Jupiter Pluvius yesterday.

Did it rain? All right now you ask me, and then we'll both laugh.

It would be impossible to list all of the knee deep water puddles which were to be found on many of our street corners.

And some of the cellars—well, rowboats were in order.

The subway beneath the Southern Pacific tracks at Sixteenth street on Macdonald avenue attracted a large crowd. Pumps in the subway were unable to keep up with the downpour of rain and a fire engine was brought to the scene to pump out the water.

Street car patrons were forced to hoof it across the tracks and then take street cars which were marooned on the other side of the tunnel.

And that look on some of the stalled motorists. It can't be described. As you sail merrily along with the water splashing on the just and unjust alike, your engine suddenly decides that it has had too much to drink. It sputters for a minute and then the end.

Maybe you know how to use your handkerchief to dry out those portions of the motor which are adverse to water. Maybe you don't, in which case if you are patient you just sit and wait until nature takes care of the drying out process.

Batteries are stressed to the wearing out point. Maybe the long face you are making will attract some kind motorist not so unfortunate and he gives you a tow.

All in all a good time was had by many motorists yesterday, not mentioning the hundreds of pedestrians who got a good portion of the splatterings.

Much of this could be avoided if we had an adequate storm sewer system. It will have to be done sooner or later and we might as well get busy now and make our arrangements.

Richmond is getting to be a city now and will have to get out of the habit of letting the rainwater run off in gutters along the street.

Probably the most surprised person in the whole city yesterday was the driver of a gasoline truck who lost the rear wheel of his trailer.

Unaware that one of the wheels had detached itself from the trailer, the driver whistled merrily as he rundled along Macdonald avenue in the rain.

Pedestrians and drivers that passed him made signs to him, but he thought that every one was trying to tell him it was raining or something like that.

The trailer seemed to be perfectly balanced, for it kept right on going on its three wheels with the broken axle well off the ground.

After the driver had gone for several blocks one of the helpful pedestrians finally made himself heard and the driver halted his truck along the curb and went back for several blocks looking for his lost wheel.

Wire Kite Line Electrocutes Boy

WASCO, March 4.—UP—A wire used for a kite line in place of a string touched a high tention power line today and electrocuted Ben Martinez, 15, today. Eleven hundred volts of electricity passed through the boy's body.

STOCK MART PRESIDENT ACCUSED

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 4—(U.P.)—George Noel Keyston, president of the San Francisco stock exchange, was named in an indictment returned by the federal grand jury late today that charged six members of Leib, Keyston & Co., brokerage firm, "aided and abetted" persons recently indicted for embezzlement of $550,000.

There were five counts in the indictment and bail was fixed at $5000 on each. Those named in addition to Keyston were Elmer J. Griffin, Douglas C. Alexander, Gray S. Rossiter, Claude Galmarino and Charles H. Gray.

The specific charges were that these six men "aided and abetted" Joseph C. Bray, Robert G. Haddow and Daniel P. Burke, employes of the Bank of Italy, who were recently indicted on charges of embezzlement, and to have used the money for speculation. Bray was managr of a branch here.

Complete Surprise

A statement issued by Keyston tonight said:

"Of course the indictments are a complete surprise to all of us. We are familiar with the so-called Bray case; in fact in February, 1929, Bray came to me and stated that he was interested in the account of certain customers in our office. I immediately informed Bray's employers of what he had said. Nothing in our connection with that matter can possibly justify indictments against us. When we are furnished with all the details of the charges we shall take such action as may be necessary."

Charges Made

Keyston's name was mentioned in two of the counts. Four of them named individuals and the fifth charged all with conspiracy.

United States attorney George Hatfield said that he had been advised by attorneys for the firm that all would probably appear voluntarily and submit to arrest, including two who are in Los Angeles, where the firm also engages in business. He did not know their names.

Griffin, a brother of Mervyn "Peck" Griffin, noted tennis player, was reported to be in New York.

FOOTBALL STAR SLAIN IN BRAWL

NEW ORLEANS, March 4.—UP—J. A. "Tiny" Lawrence, former Tulane university football player from Oklahoma, was shot and fatally wounded here this afternoon i na fracas with a gan gof negroes during the annal Madri Gras celebration.

Lawrence, with a number of other college boys, was riding in costume on a truck in the carnival parade when they were attacked by a gang of negroes. A shot fired by a person unknown struck him in the head and he died almost instantly.

Conference On Filling In Of Property Today

James A. McVittie, city manager and E. A. Hoffman, city engineer will confer with Ralph Beebe, Berkeley waterfront company engineer regarding proposed improvements of the company on the local waterfront which will cost approximately $700,000.

McVittie and Hoffman will confer with Beebe regarding the outfall of several sewers which have their outlet in the affected territory.

Under the filling-in plan of the company, the outfall of some of these sewers would be covered up. Ways and means must now be devised to work out a plan whereby an extension or some other method will be used so that these sewers will continue to empty into bay waters after the extensive filling is completed.

Spring Modes To Be Shown By Merchants

Richmond merchants are preparing for their annual spring opening to be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The latest in men's and women's wear and furniture will be shown by the local merchants.

The event will start at 7:30 tonight when the merchants will unveil their windows, revealing for the first time what fashion has dictated.

Window displays of surpassing beauty are being prepared by the leading stores of the city. Spring blossoms will combine with the new colors of spring clothing to present ensembles perfect in taste and right up to the minute.

Rain or no rain, it is expected that a large crowd will turn out to see the window displays and to visit the stores on the following days.

COUNTY HALTS OPENING OF HUMPHREY AVE

The board of supervisors this week, continued the Humphrey avenue matter over until March 18, with instructions to the engineer to eliminate this portion of the work out of the proceedings.

New plans will be presented to the board and the present proceedings rescinded.

The action was taken on the motion of Supervisor J. N. Long, at the request of the city council and City Manager James A. McVittie.

After a survey of the ground the council decided it would be an imposition on the property owners to have the work carried out.

TAFT HAS FAIR DAY

WASHINGTON, March 4.—UP—The condition of William Howard Taft was unchanged today, exactly a month since he was brought back, a dying man ,from a trip to North Carolina recommended by his physicians as necessary for his rapidly failing health.

A fairly optimistis report on Taft's condition was reported by his physicians after their visit at 7 p. m. The bulletin said:

"The former chief justice has had a fairly good day. He has taken more nourishment than at any time during the past week."

Dr. Hagner said Taft recognized and spoke to Mrs. Taft tonight.

The Tafts' son, Robert, who returned to his home in Cincinnati yesterday kept in touch with the Taft home by telephone today. He is expected to return here in a few days.

Taft slept fitfully during the day. Dr. Francis Hagner and Dr. Thomas Claytor omitted the usual afternoon call. After the morning visit they issued the following bulletin:

"The condition of the former chief justice is unaltered since yesterday. He is comfortable and continues to take a moderate amount of nourishment."

Veteran Post Has Initiation

Many out of town visitors attended a class initiation of Richmond V. F. W. in the Memorial hall last night.

Among them were: L. Borgi, of Astor Post ,Oakland, deputy council administrator; Ed Griffith of Hollywood Post, Alameda, and George Bremell of Astor post.

Despite the inclement weather, a large crowd of veterans attended the meting.

The degree was exemplified by the Richmond team, and a discussion of veteran activities was held.

NEW PROBE IN RODEO BANK HOLDUP

Sheriff's officers of Contra Costa county today will launch an investigation that may, or may not, directly link Rudolph B. Straight, of Bay Point and his brother-in-law, Clarence Forrest, 24, with the robbery of the Rodeo branch of the Pinole bank and the slaying of Constable Arthur MacDonald.

Straight and Forrest are being held in the Berkeley city jail, Straight charged with the robbery of the Berkeley branch of the Bank of America of $3500 on Jan. 16, a crime to which he has confessed, police reported. Forrest is being held on an open charge.

Following Straight's alleged confession, Deputy Sheriff R. A. McNamara of Martinez and Inspector James Wilson, of Berkeley, went to the home of M. M. Straight, the suspect's father, at Bay Point. Here they found a car, said to have been owned by Straight.

Guns Found

Stripping away the upholstery of the , car they found hidden a complete set of burglar tools, two revolvers, two wigs, two sets of handcuffs, two sets of keys and a mask, they reported.

Later the officers went to the Straight home, where they are alleged to have found a .45 calibre pistol which they said was owned by Straight. Several test shots were fired from the gun by the officers. These bullets will be turned over to E. O. Heinrich, Berkeley crimonologist to be compared with the lead slugs that killed Constable MacDonald.

Train Holdup Quiz

Police are also investigating the possibility that Straight played a part in the robbery of a Southern Pacific train at McEvoy in July, 1929.

Straight and Forrest were arrested by deputy sheriffs and Berkeley police early Sunday morning. The arrest followed a "tip-off" to the sheriff's office that Straight had lost $489 on a pair of fours in a stud poker game at Pittsburg. The money Straight is alleged to have lost was in silver dollars and half dollars. All of the money taken from the Berkeley bank was in silver dollars and half dollars.

Straight maintained in his alleged confession that Forrest had nothing to do with the Berkeley bank robbery, that he had picked up an uniedntified man on the streets who joined with him in the robbery.

4 KILLED IN TRAIN CRASH

CERES, March 4.—UP—The San Joaquin Valley flier of the Southern Pacific railroad plowed into an automobile at a cemetery crossing near here late today and four persons were killed.

Simpson failed to see the train as he drove to the tracks at the crossing, half a mile north of here.

The automobile was demolished and carried half a mile by the locomotive before the trai ncould be stopped.

Pupils Build Model Gliders

The glider craze has even found its way into the ranks of the Richmond Union high school aviation club. Many members of that organization are now engaged in the construction of model gliders, which are mighty like the real thing except in size. The boys are planning to enter them in model aircraft flying competitions during the present semester.

A. D. Renford, representative of the American Air Cadets, spoke before a recent meeting of the local aviation club on the construction of aircraft models.

CAR STOLEN

George Hapner, 163 South street reported to police last night that his car was stolen from Twenty-third street and Macdonald avenue.

PLAN READY FOR NEEDY SYSTEM

(By Frank B. Schumann)

Flood conditions, such as tied up traffic, and menaced health and property in Richmond yesterday indicate that the time is not far distant when this city will be forced to install the Main Sanitary and Storm Sewers, as outlined in a survey recently compiled by John O. Miller, sanitary engineer under the personal supervision of E. A. Hoffman, city engineer, or some similar system.

Here are the flood conditions which greeted Richmond citizens during yesterday's downpour:

A lake of about five acres in area was created in back of the Pullman shops. This huge lake extended from the Pullman shops to Ohio avenue.

The Southern Pacific subway on Macdonald avenue was flooded to such extent that two electric pumps, permanently installed in the subway were not adequate to take care of the water. The city Fordson, a fire department pump capable of throwing 900 gallons of water a minute and two pumps from the Key System required several hours to clear the tunnel of water.

Sewers Flooded

All sanitary sewers in the city were running to capacity and flowing over.

Along the Santa Fe right of way, practically every sewer was popping over.

A large lake of water was created at Eleventh street and Roosevelt avenue.

Water entered the basement of many homes, and numerous business houses, particularly that section in the vicinity of Eleventh street and Macdonald avenue.

In some sections of the city large bodies of water were still visible at a late hour last night.

The corporation yards and the city shops were completely under water.

Streets Like Rivers

Water gushed in a torrent down Macdonald avenue into the subway. Barriers finally had to be constructed to divert the water into other property along the streets in an attempt to clear the subway.

The Pullman avenue and Twenty-third street intersection was completely under water.

Flood conditions existed in practically every section of the city.

On Tenth street, south of Ohio avenue, the water flowed in a steady stream from curb to curb.

Bissell avenue was practically like a river for several hours after the start of the heavy rain.

Small Drainage

There is small surface drainage in this city, and we have no storm sewers at the present time.

In considering the drainage of the city one must remember that at one time there were five big creeks running through the area which is now known as Richmond proper. These creeks now filled, took care of the surface water. All of this water must now be carried on the streets of the city.

In regard to the sanitary conditions as they exist at present, the report prepared in the engineer's office has this to say:

Sewage On Streets

"In addition to those sewers found to be of inefficient size to handle the ultimate population, some lines are unable to handle the present sanitary flow and others unable to handle certain peak loads due to direct inflow of storm water from undetermined sources.

THESE FAULTS LEAD TO THE DIRECT FLOW OF SEWAGE LIQUIDS AND SOLIDS DOWN THE GUTTERS OF CERTAIN SECTIONS OF THE CITY AND THE POLLUTING OF PONDS. WITH THE TENDENCY OF CHILDREN TO PLAY IN WATER AND WITH THE LEAKY WATER MAINS IN THE CITY THIS CONSTITUTES A REAL MENACE.

Retard Shipping

"The sanitary sewers of the district under consideration empty into the inner harbor and the future development of this harbor makes it necessary that preparations be made for the elimination

MRS LEWIS LUCKENBACH, who recently sued her husband, vice-president of the Luckenbach steamship lines for divorce, was notified that her husband had filed counter suit, naming another man.

MISSING AIR LINER CLUE FRUITLESS

LOS ANGELES, March 4.—UP—After a futile search of the rugged San Bernardino mountain canyon in which a rancher reported having seen the wreckage of a missing Western Air Express plane, officials of the line dismissed the clue today.

They said they believed that J. P. Barber, the rancher, must have been mistaken when he reported having observed twisted remnants of a plane through binoculars.

The big passenger plans has been missing for 10 days with a crew of three men—James Doles, pilot; A. W. Beiber, co-pilot, and John Slaton ,steward.

The return of C. C. Cole, divisional superintendent of Western Air, from Lake Arrowhead, was awaited before plans for a renewed search for the missing ship are started.

It has been almost definitely settled that the plane, being "ferried" from Kingman, Ariz., to Los Angeles by its crew after landing passengers at Kingman, disappeared in the San Bernardino mountain country during a storm. There have been several reports that a plane was seen circling over the district on the afternoon it was either forced down or crashed.

Oil Executive Commits Suicide

LOS ANGELES, March 4.—UP—George E. Ill health was believed to have been the motive. A maid found his body in a shed at his home.

ORMSBY TO SURRENDER TODAY

OAKLAND, Mar. 4—Indictment of four Oakland men for alleged bribery are expected to be returned tomorrow by the Alameda county grand jury.

The forms of indictments were being prepared today by district attorney Earl Warren and his staff in readiness for possible action when the jury resumes its investigation into the eastbay paving graft tomorrow morning.

It was reported that the grand jury feels that enough evidence has been presented to warrant the voting of criminal indictments before it adjourns tomorrow night.

Pavers Named

The heads of two large paving firms and at least two other persons, are said to be named in the indictment forms.

The investigation has already resulted in the indictment of six persons and an "accusation" against Sheriff Burton F. Becker, in which 13 charges of misconduct in office are made.

Five of the six men indicted on charges of bribery and conspiracy to bribe, appeared before Superior Judge Homer Spence today when their arraignment was set for next

CANCER VICTIM DIES IN S. F.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 4.—UP—Mrs. Gertrude Edwins, who was brought here from Wenatchee, Wash., in an aerial ambulance and received all the aid modern science could offer, succumbed to the inroads of cancer this afternoon at St. Mary's hospital.

Physicians had prolonged her life for many days with blood transfusions and other expert care but it proved in vain.

Death came at 3:10 p. m.

Among those who were with Mrs. Edwins in her last hours was the husband who had mortgaged his farm to obtain money for the 1100 mile airplane race against death. He had hoped that treatment here might save her.

Mrs. Edwins, mother of four children, had rallied after blood transfusions but Dr. George K. Rhodes, who attended her, dispaired of saving her life soon after she arrived.

OH, TRY TO!

Oh, try to tell me—if you can—
The perfect way to please a man,
To keep his passion at the right
Degree of fervor, Fahrenheit?

Oh, try to tell some happy way
That I may know from day to day
Just what to be—his love? His pal?
His vamp, wife, saint—or not at all?

Because it seems, when I'm remote,
He snaps: "Come to! You get my goat."
Yet when I'm gay with winsome sport,
He'll growl and squelch me with a snort

I've tried devotion and disdain,
I'll have to quit or go insane—
Yet, now that I am packed to go,
He vows he never loved me so!

I'm well aware if I relent
I'm just a bear for punishment,
But how about the man I'd fly to—
Oh, try to tell my dear—just try to!

Does Uncle Sam Play Fair With Women?

"MY COLLEAGUES and I," said Doris Stevens, opening the Inter-American Commission of Women in Havana this week, "enter upon our labors with profound conviction of the necessity of establishing equality between men and women in all departments of human affairs. Let us here rededicate ourselves, one and all, to unceasing labor until men and women shall stand together, shall work together and shall together direct the affairs of the peoples of the world as peers, as equals and as human beings."

The first impatient mental reaction of many who read Miss Stevens's plea will be this: "But women already HAVE equality!"

Have they?

Not always—not yet.

We have been surprised and irritated by some statistics just brought to our notice of how Uncle Sam, in the role of employer, behaves toward his nieces. Clearly, there exists "the necessity of establishing equality between men and women," in the opportunity open to them in the Federal service. Clearly, women at present do not enjoy equality of opportunity here.

For, under the law, a Federal bureau head can ask for a man employee, even though a woman candidate for the office may have a much higher civil service rating. A Federal bureau head not only can, but does, ask for a man, in what seems a preposterously large number of cases. During the fiscal year of 1928, out of 1,013 appointments to professional and scientific positions under Federal civil service, only 47 were women!

IS THAT a situation reflecting "equality between men and women"? And it is not a situation which can be explained away by saying that women do not make good as Federal civil service employees. One-half of the 60,000 of such employees in Washington are women.

Furthermore, women so employed have proved that—given the opportunity—they have the capacity to rise.

Miss Jessie Dell, one of the $9,000 members of the Civil Service Commission and the highest paid woman in Uncle Sam's employ, was once a War Department clerk.

Miss Annabel Matthews, recently appointed by President Hoover as the first woman on the United States Board of Tax Appeals, entered the Treasury as a file clerk fifteen years ago.

Miss Ruth B. Shipley, now chief of the Passport Division, worked fourteen years in the State Department.

Mrs. A. E. Kayser, who has served as temporary head of the Steamboat Inspection Service and is administrative assistant to the Supervising Inspector General, rose from the position of stenographer.

Women, it seems obvious, will make good in public as in private service—if they are given the chance. But how much chance are they given, if men chiefs are allowed to select men subordinates on the ground of their sex, even though they are outranked by the other sex? Uncle Sam seems to be among the employers who could profit by a reading of the standards of employment for wage-earning women urged in the name of health and efficiency by the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor. The first two of these standards are as follows:

Real opportunity for employment and advancement.

Adequate wage based on occupation and not on sex.

TREE BLIZZARD

The trees are startled and afraid—
Their heads are bending low;
The drizzling rain has slowly changed
From ice to flakes of snow.

The wind is hissing through the trees,
The ice-dipped branches cry
Beneath the feathering shower
Of the white-moulting sky.

At dawn, when you and I awake,
Will sun-rays pierce the snow
And light each tree with golden flames?
I wonder . . . do you know?

WHAT TO DO

THE WOMAN OF IT: I was graduated from high school last year and am taking a secretarial course, but I am interested in newspaper work. Next year I plan to go to college, evenings. Would you advise me to take a journalism course, or the regular B. A., specializing in literature and psychology? Is there a newspaper market for editorial work by women, especially if illustrated? I'm studying freehand drawing now.

SAY BERNSTEIN.

The best training for newspaper writing or any other, in our opinion, is the best general education obtainable. For women in newspaper work all opportunities are, unfortunately, limited in number. One is more likely to be found by the girl who can draw as well as write.

John D. Rockefeller finds that golf is good to take the conceit out of one, but the woman who has to listen to the golf stories of her husband or her employer must conclude that the game doesn't affect all men the same way.

A DISH A DAY

By Nancy Dorris

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

All days have become salad days. Salad once and oftener twice a day assure the family a generous amount of minerals, vitamins, and the roughage fresh vegetables contribute toward the cause of health and happiness.

NANCY DORRIS.

The salad course is an important one at luncheon or dinner in all seasons. Thought and then more thought make for the right salad at the right time. The salad has its place in the well-planned meal and is not an accident.

While the strictly green salad dominates the dinner field, there are exceptions to the established rule. Now and then some other type of salad seems advisable, as when the salad serves the purpose of vegetable and salad at the steak or chop dinner, or as salad and dessert at the too-heavy meal.

A bit of quivery jelly bright with crisp vegetables nesting in lettuce cups will stimulate the lagging appetite, or serve as vegetable and salad at the planked meat or fish dinner.

Salads are sprightly foods of limitless variety. Given a range of foundation greens, cooked and raw vegetables and some zestful dressing, now and then just kissed by the garlic bead, any woman becomes a salad specialist.

Almost no other branch of cookery affords the opportunity for expression that the salad gives its maker. As a means of utilizing left over vegetables, the salad has no equal.

JELLIED VEGETABLE SALAD

One tablespoon gelatine
One-fourth cup cold water
One-fourth cup boiling water
One-fourth cup sugar
One-fourth cup vinegar
Two tablespoons lemon juice
One teaspoon salt
One cup shredded celery
One-half cup shredded cabbage
One-half cup soaked peas
One-third cup cucumber cubes
One pimento cut in strips
One cup Louis sauce, or mayonnaise
Romaine or lettuce
Servings: five or six.

Instead of the pimento, pickled beets cut in fancy shapes, ripe olive halves or sliced hard-cooked eggs may be used for garnishing the jelly. Some bright color is desirable in so delicate a salad.

Place the gelatine in the bowl, add the cold water and let soak five minutes, then add the boiling water, stir until dissolved and turn into the mixing bowl. Season with the vinegar, lemon juice, sugar and salt. Taste and add any seasoning advisable. Set aside to cool and thicken slightly.

Later add to the thickening jelly the crisp, dainty shreds of fine cabbage, celery cut in U-shaped pieces, the freshly cooked or canned drained green peas and the cucumber cubes. Mix carefully and divide among the salad moulds, which have been decorated with the bright red pimento, or fancy cuts of pickled beetroot. Let harden in the refrigerator.

At serving time arrange the crispest lettuce or romaine leaves or watercress upon chilled salad plates. Unmould the jellied salads upon the foundation greens and top with a spoon of Sauce Louis, or Russian dressing. Serve pronto!

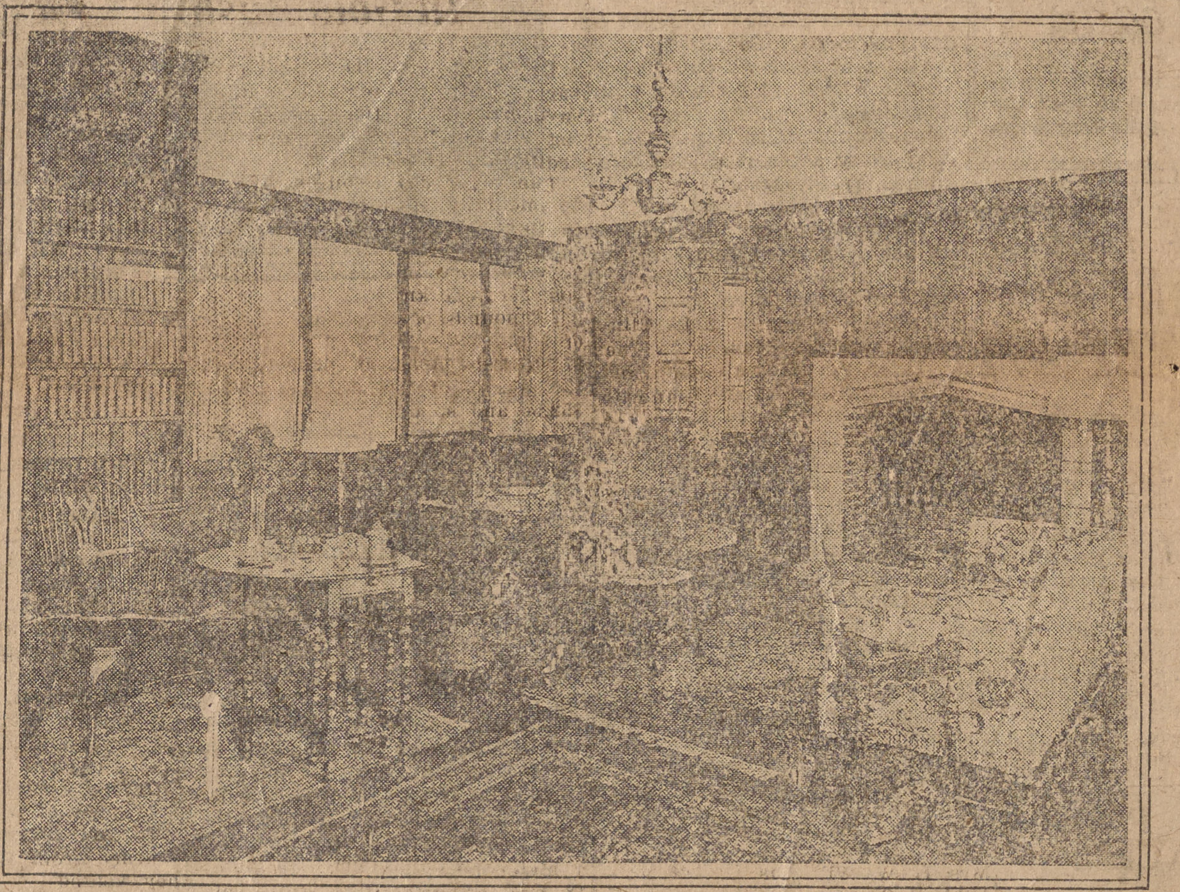
Modernizing the Home

Furnishing the Combined Living-Dining Room

By Alma Zaiss



FOR THE HOME THAT IS ENGLISH IN CHARACTER FURNITURE OF THIS TYPE IS MOST APPROPRIATE.

My Dear Miss Zaiss:

We have been reading and enjoying your articles for quite some time. Now, we are turning to you for help, if you would be so kind as to aid us?

We have in the course of construction, nearly ready to move in, a house of English Cottage design. The combined living room and dining room is a great problem to us because we are anxious to have the furnishings in perfect accord with the general architecture.

The walls are of rough plaster and painted in a parchment shade. The trim is in old oak, and the flooring is of dark, wide oak boards. The height of the ceiling is seven feet six inches. The ceiling is beamed with old oak beams.

The fireplace is of wide gray stone. There are no ceiling lights, but only wall sconces.

Will you kindly suggest a color scheme for the drapes? And a general layout for the furniture? We are going to buy all new furniture, either antiques or good reproductions.

Inclosed is the floor plan. I thank you for any aid.

(Mrs.) G. Y.

Pieces That Serve Yet Conceal the Need for Double Service

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

FOR just a moment—when reading Mrs. Y's letter, we wondered why she should consider her living-dining room a great problem. For the floor plan indicates one of the most charming arrangements for this purpose that it has been our good fortune to receive. Could she but see the host of inconvenient apartment rooms that come begging for good double-service plans, she would be immensely encouraged.

We shall proceed at once to the business of furnishing this room so that even the most calculating eye shall not suspect its quick-change possibilities until the right moment.

The room is small. Therefore it is important to choose furniture that is small in scale, although it may be of the rather heavy old-English type if that style is preferred. It would seem to suit very well the character of the room with its massive stone fireplace, rough walls and brown-beamed ceiling.

There are two distinct points of interest to be considered—the hearth and the alcove—with the stronger accent on the hearth, of course. We are morally obligated to plan this fireside corner so that it shall endear itself to all comers. For not often do present-day homes provide so generously for this important feature.

The diagram of arrangement shows a grouping which should afford beauty and comfort, hospitality, rest and relaxation. Here a five-foot sofa is drawn up before the hearth and a long, narrow table placed behind it for two reasons: Silhouetted against the back of the sofa a beautiful old English table in this position will present its best points to one entering from the foyer, the while it provides a place for reading lamps, books and magazines. One will want to read long and often before this cheerful hearth.

To the left of the sofa there is room for a comfortable lounging chair and a small table for smoking things. To the right we have indicated a fireside bench, which may be of the sturdy old English type, with perhaps a loose cushion for its plain wooden top.

The second point of interest, the alcove, can be made convenient for dining, reading or for a game of bridge by using an English gateleg table opened out before the window, with a pair of comfortable open arm chairs at either side. Then—if it is not too late—Mrs. Y. might have small arched niches with recessed shelves built into the two narrow walls marked X on the diagram. Bright colored books, bits of porcelain and colored glass on the shelves would add a great deal of character to the room and give the alcove the effect of a library corner. On the wall at either side of the casement window, wrought iron sconces filled with trailing ivy and green things would be most effective.

An old-English secretary with drawers to accommodate table linen and silver may occupy the wall to the left of the entrance, and there is room for a radio and another comfortable chair to the left of the door leading to the porch.

This seems to provide for every need of the combined living-dining room. The small room is not in the least crowded; there is ample seating for nine persons in three attractive groups, and the table and chairs for dining are in readiness at all times.

Although the illustration shows a different arrangement from the one indicated for Mrs Y.'s room, it pictures a number of fine old English pieces which would be ideal for her purpose. The sofa is a particularly good type, but need not be so elaborate for Mrs. Y.'s room. In the interest of economy a Lawson sofa and easy chair would be equally suitable for the fireside group.

A larger English gateleg table and two armchairs of the type illustrated at the left of the picture would be charming for the alcove of our problem. The long table suggests a pleasing design for the table to be used behind the sofa; the upholstered chair with open arms offers another good suggestion for the chair to be used by the radio. All these sturdy yet graceful pieces suggest luxury and refinement without being elaborate, and in general type they seem to fit very naturally into the environment suggested by Mrs. Y.'s description of her home.

We hesitate to recommend a color scheme without knowing Mrs. Y's preference. However, it would seem that, with the parchment walls, gray stone fireplace and natural beams, a soft, deep garnet carpet would be very pleasing; then the casement windows may have simple side curtains arranged to draw at night. These could be of chintz or hand-blocked linen in an old-English floral or Jacobean pattern carrying rich colors of garnet, blue-green, purple and a bit of gold, and the covers for the sofa and fireside chair could be of the same figured fabric. Glass curtains for the French doors may be of simple parchment-colored voile stretched tight on rods at the top and bottom. The chair by the radio should be covered in blue-green wool damask, or in a garnet and gold jute damask, which is very durable and effective. If the latter is used, cushions for the desk chair and the two chairs in the alcove could be in bluish-green; sofa cushions could be of plain garnet with perhaps one in antique gold.

We are not sure whether the fireplace has a mantel shelf or whether it is one of the hooded type. If there is an over-mantel space it should have some effective treatment, preferably a fine old picture in keeping with the room, and at either side of the door leading to the porch there should be a lovely colorful picture.

Not many combination living-dining rooms lend themselves so perfectly to a treatment which is not forced in its attempt to serve a double purpose. But nevertheless, this plan should hold a number of good ideas for those who are troubled with similar problems.

Looking Into the Future of Hair

"LONG or short?"

A question that is asked concerning skirts and stocks and hair. Everywhere, and by almost everybody. The future of skirts is pretty definitely settled by now, the future of stocks never shall be, but the to-morrows of the coiffure are still open to prophecy. And Ye Beauty Shop has been invited to gaze into the crystal ball.

We do not foresee a wholesale return to Godiva or Melisande effects in hair. Neither, on the other hand, does it look as if all womankind are to be shorn as the Amazons of old.

No, it seems that the future of hair is neither on the long side nor on the short side, but rather on both sides. It will work out something like this: Short hair for the sportswoman and the business woman; long hair for the sweet and fragile stay-at-home. And for the rest of women—those who are not definite types, those who have a daytime mien and an evening personality—short hair for mornings and some afternoons, long hair for the evenings and certain formal afternoons. Impractical? Not with the help of a modern transformation it isn't—never before were they more realistic than they are right at this minute!

To put the prophecy in other words, hair is going the way of skirts. No hard and fast rules of the mode to govern it, no stupid standardization, none of the old-fashioned sheeplike way of doing things. No. At last, oh, praise be, we are permitted to be ourselves and permitted by none other than those two once terrible tyrants of all civilized life—Fashion and Public Opinion. At last skirts and locks are to be regulated sanely and beautifully—according to the time and the place and the woman.

Nor shall there be any law regulating the length of the bob, or the style of dressing longer locks. Jagged windblow effects, the long bob beloved of certain queens of screen, the boyish cut—all shall be good, provided they suit the individual wearer. To be chignoned is not necessarily to be chic. The evening coiffure may be swirled or twisted or anything else and still be eminently smart—if only it follows the outlines of the head and the personality of the head's owner.

It is a kindly mode that shows itself in the crystal, and a supremely sane one. It presents only one outstanding disadvantage—no opportunity for making excuses on the part of the woman who does not look her best! The year 1900 gave her a much better break for not looking smartly attractive. Pity the girl of that period and be thankful once again that you have your being in this enlightened year of 1930.

Wood in the Kitchen

MANY cooks prefer the wooden chopping bowl and chopping knife like grandma used. The modern cook uses the meat grinder for many purposes, but when she wants the food particles kept separate she likes grandma's utensil better. So she has a wooden bowl and knife and uses it for chopping vegetables for salad, meat and potatoes for the hash, chopping raw cabbage, nuts, &c.

Many good cooks prefer a wooden spoon to the newer metal types for mixing and beating batters. When stirring food in aluminum cooking dishes the wooden spoon will not mar the surface as the metal spoon does. In mixing salads the wooden spoon is not affected by the acid ingredients as is the metal spoon, so the old-fashioned wooden spoon has an important place in the modern kitchen.

"DAD, what's maple syrup?"

"The boiled down sap of the hard maple tree."

"What makes it sweet? Do they put sugar in it?"

"No, the sap is sweet."

"Why is the sap sweet?"

"Because, through the roots, it gathers certain elements in the soil and converts them into sugars."

"Converts the roots into sugars?"

"No, the elements."

"How does it convert these elements into sugars?"

"By a natural chemical process."

"What's a natural chemical process?"

"Oh, go to bed."

IL DUCE'S SON-IN-LAW

MUSSOLINI'S daughter Edda will be married soon. We don't know who the lucky man is, but we know he will be lucky if he even gets honorable mention at the wedding. When the Dictator, the Premier of Italy, Il Duce, the Minister of Finance, the Minister of Marine, the Minister of the Interior, the Minister of War and the Minister of Education is your papa-in-law you're lucky to get into the rotogravure sections at all, with all his decorations.

We can think of no greater obscurity for a man than marrying Mussolini's daughter, unless it is to be elected the other Senator from Idaho. When the happy couple drives through the squares of Rome the populace will roar a mighty tribute to Edda and they will cheer her hubby for his courage.

The nuptials will take place this spring, and the King of Italy had better kick in with a nice wedding present or he will be demoted to Honorary Lance Corporal of the Royal Italian Fusileers. For when Calvin Coolidge can start a riot by discarding a cigar butt you can get a good idea how important Mussolini is.

Personally, we should hate to be married to Edda Mussolini. You can imagine what will happen when they have their first married spat. Will Edda threaten her hubby to go home to mother? No! She will threaten to call his papa-in-law over to the house.

There is a little side bet we'd like to make right now concerning Edda's married life. No matter how bitter their family quarrels may be, hubby will never dare to say to Edda, "And so is your old man." We would rather be on the crater of Mount Vesuvius when it erupted than have Mussolini tell us where we get off.

At that, the young chap must have had his nerve with him when he popped the question to Mussolini for Edda's hand. We imagine the interview skipped along like this:

EDDA'S BOY FRIEND—I have come to ask you an important question, Signor Mussolini.

MUSSOLINI—Il Duce to you, my lad!

EDDA'S B. F.—Si, si, Il Duce. I have come to ask you an important question.

MUSSOLINI—Well, I am very busy now. I am straightening out a couple of thousand things with the Vatican, I have to review 60,000 Fascisti before luncheon, I have got to get the five-power naval parley on the right track, I have got to sign 14,000 appointments for fourth class Postmasterships, I have got to help Crown Prince Umberto and Princess Yolanda get their budget system started, I must lay seventeen cornerstones for new custom houses, I have to run over to the Palace and inspect King Victor Emanuel's new pants and then I'll probably have to straighten out the affairs of the Fox Film Company—all in the next fifteen or twenty minutes.

EDDA'S B. F.—Si, si, Il Duce.

MUSSOLINI—However, what did you have on your mind?

EDDA'S B. F.—I would like—er—that is—may I marry your daughter Edda?

MUSSOLINI — Edda? Edda? My daughter Edda? Let me look up in my card index which one she is.

EDDA'S B. F.—Edda is your very beautiful daughter—the next to the eldest.

MUSSOLINI—Oh, that one! Well, yes, my boy, you may marry her. Now I have to devote myself to the problem of merging the Bay of Naples with Lake Como, so run along and I hope you'll be very happy. And if you see Mrs. Mussolini, tell her I'll try to be home by half past 1932.

Jail Sentence 'Lucky Break'

ANACONDA, Mont.—(U.P.)—"What a lucky break!" exclaimed Peter Martin, haflbreed Indian as he pleaded guilty to a forgery charge and was sentenced to serve 18 months in prison.

Campus Police Lauds Students

PALO ALTO, Mar. 4—(U.P.)—John Olsen, for two years guardian of peace on the Stanford University campus, is going back to the candy business.

Olsen, who is vice-president of a large San Francisco confectionery, dropped his former occupation on the advice of doctors, who told him to get out into the open air. To do this he became a motorcycle officer, patrolling the Stanford campus.

"Ninety-five per cent of the university fellows are the finest chaps you would ever like to meet," Olsen told his superiors upon resigning. "These crepe hangers who howl about the young folks going to the dogs are all wet. Of course they are in the wrong sometimes, but they're never malicious and they take their medicine like men."

Groceries High In Gold Rush

BUTTE, Mont.—(U.P.)—No wonder early day prospectors couldn't save much out of their placer mining stakes. To live in those days required a young fortune.

The other day a bill contracted by one William Clark in 1862 came to light. It revealed among other things that nine pounds of coffee cost $9; that one box of matches cost 25c; one knife and fork, $1.50; 2 1-2 pounds of tea, $7.50; one bar of soap, 50c; 10 pounds of sugar, $7.50; two papers of pepper, 80c; 150 pounds of flour (three sacks), $52.50 and so on.

There was a reason and a good one, why common laborers demanded and got $10 a day in those gold rush days.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."

Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

STAGE STARS IN "JEALOUSY" PICTURE

New faces, have long been the quest of enterprising movie producers, but, with the advent of the "talkies," the face must also have a "voice." The logical place to gain actors of talent in voice is the stage and three well known stage stars appear in their initial motion picture in "Jealousy," Jeanne Eagels' all-talking triumph, which opens tomorrow at the Fox-California theater.

In its original stage form "Jealousy" needed only two characters, but the all-talking production introduces numerous characters who were only referred to on the stage. Experienced stage folk handle these parts.

An English actress of outstanding ability is Hilda Moore, well known for her parts in the stage presentations of "Interference," "The Outcast," "Bella Donna," "Dear Brutus" and many other plays. In "Jealousy" she is the manager of the gown shop.

Halliwell Hobbes, who appeared in "The Swan" and "Easy Virtue" and both acted in and directed "When Crumbles Played," is seen and heard in "Jealousy" as "Rigaud," the man-about-town.

The third English actor to leave the stage to accept a part in "Jealousy" is Henry Daniell, who was taken from the Broadway success, "Serena Blandish," for the part of "Clement" in Miss Eagles' new picture. He is well known for his work in "Alibi," and other stage dramatic successes.

Fredric March, who plays the leading man opposite Miss Eagles, is well known throughout the country for his stage ability and although this is not his initial appearance on the screen, he is yet a newcomer to the movies. March has been seen and heard before in "The Dummy" and "The Wild Party" but before that time he was not only a star on Broadway but scored a great success in stock productions in the west as well.

All these, and other stage actors combine to make "Jealousy" an all-talking picture whose every word is clearly and plainly audible without the least effort.

A talking comedy "Adam's Eve" is also on the program.

FRANCE GUARDS AGAINST RED 'UPRISING'

PARIS, Mar. 4— (U.P.) —The French government took the lead tonight among continental nations preparing against threats of widespread Communist demonstrations Thursday.

Recognizing the danger of disorders in the capital as a result of Communist plans for a worldwide unemployment demonstration, Premier Andre Tardieu ordered the entire Paris garrison of 10,000 soldiers and the police force of 15,000 men supplemented by rural police in the suburbs.

All of the troops were placed at the disposal of the military governor of Paris. Gen. Henri Gouraud, and the perfect of police, Jean Chiappe, who was successful in preventing the scheduled Communist demonstrations last May.

The necessity of precautions also was recognized by the Czecho-Slovakian government and 18 members of the Communist central committee at Prague were arrested on charges of planning nationwide demonstrations Thursday. Police forces also were in readiness at the Czeck capital and started discouraging demonstrations by scattering about 100 who gathered before the city hall for preliminary agitation.

In Berlin, the newspapers warned of the scheduled parades and protests, while the Lokal Anzeiger reported that the western European bureau of the Communist International met at Dpeseldorf and planned participation in the Thursday demonstrations. The newspaper said Communists from Germany, France and Holland attended and discussed plans for propaganda against unemployment in Germany and the organization of "hunger parades" similar to those which caused violent rioting in Schleswig and Holstein districts a few weeks ago.

Carabineers arrested Nicolo Bellingheri, a Communist living in a farmhouse near Messima, Sicily, and found four bombs and a quantity of ammunition under the pavement of the house.

The Paris Communist newspaper L'Humanite, published figures purporting to show that there are now 170,000,000 persons out of employment in the world, including 5,000,000 in the United States; 3,500,000 in Germany and 2,000,000 in Great Britain. All figures were far above official records.

Champ Doughnut Maker On Board Ice Bound Ship

PORTLAND, Ore., Mar. 4—(U.P.)—The champion doughnut and biscuit maker of the north is aboard the ice-bound notorship Nanuk near North Cape, Siberia.

He is "Bill" Bissner of Vancouver, Wash., and "he's gained 40 pounds on his own cooking," according to word received here by his sister, Mrs. Edna Christofferson.

Bissner is officially the ship's chief engineer but he went in for cooking and has been turning out real doughnuts and biscuits for the crew of the Nanuk and fliers who took part in the hunt for the bodies of Lieut. Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, whose plane crashed enroute to take men off the vessel.

Bissner is likely to be cooking for another year aboard the Nanuk. Capt. Olaf Swenson, skipper of the vessel, who has arrived in Seattle, said that the Nanuk may not be out before next summer.

"LOVE PARADE" MODERN IN THOUGHT

Although "The Love Parade," the talking screen's first original musical romance which has been playing here for two days closes tonight at the Fox-California theater, is a costume production, it is as modern as tomorrow's newspaper, according to Ernst Lubitsch, who directed it.

The story deals with the love of a queen for a prince, but she is a modern queen and he is a very modern young man. The fact made the problem of costuming a difficult one.

This problem was solved by the Paramount designers by basing all the costumes on fashion trends that are indicated for the coming season, elaborating here, modifying there, and lending to all a richness ordinarily lacking.

Maurice Chevalier is starred in "The Love Parade" which features a large cast of musical comedy and screen favorites including Jeanette MacDonald, Lupino Lane, Lillian Roth and Eugene Pallette.

MIX FINED FOR ATTEMPTED TAX EVASION

LOS ANGELES, March 4.—UP—Tom Mix, the cowboy who rode to a fortune on the screen, paid the government $174,420.66 in deficiency income tax and penalties today and then was fined $3000 in federal court for the attempted evasion.

Mix strode to the bar wearing a "gorgeous" brown suit and high-heeled boots. In his hand he carried an oversize cowboy hat.

Hhe stood silently while United States Attorney Samuel McNabb told the court that he had received authority to allow Mix to plead guilty and receive a routine fine. Judge James then fined Mix $1000 on each of three counts.

McNabb also explained that Mix's income tax statements had been prepared by Miss Marjorie Berger, an expert who is serving a term in a woman's federal prison for falsification. Mix had claimed he did not know how Miss Berger had handled his statement.

A government expert testified today that the deficiency tax for the three years amounted to $118,364.11 and that a 50 percent penalty tax of $56,056.55 must be added.

Two other indictments against Mix are still pending. The first charges conspiracy with Miss Berger and John D. Hill, his publicity agent. The second names him with Miss Berger and Eugene Forde, his business manager. Both indictments will remain in effect until the government disposes of cases against Hill and Forde.

Bess Meredyth, scenarist, was fined $250 today for income tax evasion in 1927. George E. Marshall, director, was fined $250 in connection with his 1926 report.

Collector Of Violins Will Face Action

LOS ANGELES— (U.P.) —Efrem Zimbalist, famous violinist and owner of a $200,000 collection of fiddles, was fooled when he bought what he believed was a rare old Stradivarius violin, his lawyers say.

George Smith, 91, of La Crescenta, Cal., upholds the virtuoso's discernment as a connoisseur, however, and claims that Zimbalist owes him $6000 on two violins which the latter purchased from him in 1925.

Zimbalist's lawyers assert the Stradivarius and Guarnerius sold by Smith were "fakes." But recently when Zimbalist gave a concert here, the $30,000 fiddle he was playing was attached by Smith, whose lawyers say they will push the suit through the courts.

Smith was once a U. S. consul in Scotland and later became a Chicago grain dealer. He is said to be a connoisseur of violins and owns a remarkable collection.

MANILA SCHOOL STRIKE IN INCREASE

MANILA, P. I. March 5.—Wednesday—UP-The ranks of students walking out of Manila high schools in a monster demonstration against events that have followed anti-Filipino remarks by an American teacher were rapidly increasing today.

Despite wild rumors that circulated throughout the city, only minor discrders have occured.

Pupils of the Manila West high school, who were at their desks this morning, planned to join the strike at noon. It was regarded likely that the school in the old walled city would follow, in which event 15,0000 boys and girls would be effected .

Schools Guarded

A large percentage of the enrollment in Manila East High school entered the strike earlier today and students of two other schools have taken similar action in the last two weeks, objecting to the suspension of four students who led the first uprising before Miss Mabel Brummitt, the teacher, was dismissed for her remarks.

Confidence that educational authorities are competent to cope with the strike of high school students was expressed today by Governor General Dwight F. Davis .

Pupils of three high schools have been refusing to attend classes for two weeks. Police have been guarding all schools to prevent disorder but many scholars attempting to continue classes have been beaten and some girls have reported subjection to indignities. It is estimated 10,000 students are affected.

Concern eFlt

Some officials expressed concern because adult radical leaders joined the strikers, inciting them to defy educational authorities, and said they were contemplating an appeal for the governor general to intervene. In response to these remarks Davis made the comment regarding his belief that educational authorities did not need aid.

The pupils on strike were refusing to attend classes because Luther Bewley, superviso of education, had suspended the four students who led a walk-out from the Manila North High school in protest against anti-Filipino remarks of Mabel Brummitt, American teacher.

oCuncil Involved

Originally the pupils quit while an investigation was in progress. Therefore ,after discharging Miss Brummitt, authorities expelled the four students on account of insubordination.

Members of the city council became involved in the situation by demanding reinstatement of the expelled youths but Bewley declined. Since then recalcitrant boys and girls of the high schools have been attempting to make all pupils of the city join them in a sympathy strike.

Four of the striking students have been arrested on charges of beating a police sergeant.

The press generally condemns the strike and regrets the threatened breakdown in educational discipline.

Anti-Drys End Arguments Before House Committee

WASHINGTON, March 4.—UP—Anti-prohibitionists closed their case against the Eighteenth amendment before the house judiciary committee today with testimony of 15 enthusiastic wets, one of whom, a psychiatrist, blamed the liquor laws for a national "prohibition—shock" resembling the shell shocked of war time.

Prohibition, said Dr. Stewart Paton, of Johns Hopkins university, is a policy of insanity and intemperance. He added that science upholds the legend that those who have no mental outlets in drinking, chewing, smoking, cursing, "must have some very interesting vices."

The prhoibition attitude, which he said. was "fanatical," encourages rebellions or insane tendancies he said. He told the committee that a modern drinker was a better insurance risk than a teetotler, and cited a scientific survey in support of his contention.

The drys will open their case which is to occupy eight days, tomorrow with Dr. Daniel A. Poling. New York Christian Endeavor and Anti-Saloon League leader, and two other witnesses.

WASHINGTON March 4 — A suggestion that petroleum refineries work six days a week, instead of seven, was made today by the Federal Oil Conservation board.

The board declared that this would be one solution of the gasoline waste problem.

Refineries are manufacturing too much gasoline, the board declared, thus forcing "gas wars" and wastage.

Governors of California, Texas, and Oklahoma, the greatest oil producing states have been asked to call attention to the dangers to waste.

The board, in its letter to the governors, declared the gasoline stock is higher than it has been since 1927, while the domestic demand is only up to the level of 1928. "In other words," the letter stated, "the increased efficiency in the cracking of oil, combined with the seven day week, is increasing gasoline stock to a level where there will be a large element of waste."

Arrangements are being made to have Ormsby released on $5000 bail when he surrenders.

Four more paving men have been subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury tomorrow. Two of them are Charles Bates, head of Bates and Borland company, and Hardy Hutchinson, head of the Hutchinson Construction company.

Natural Gas
— a safe fuel
for heating your home

Facts published by "The National Board of Fire Underwriters" prove that gas fuel is the safest of all fuels.

Furthermore, physicians know that gas fuel is absolutely safe when burned in MODERN, UP-TO-DATE appliances. Perhaps you recall the old portable heating appliances which were connected with a flimsy rubber hose to a gas pipe. These appliances were not vented and the results were often unpleasant. People blamed the gas fuel. As a matter of fact, the blame should really have been placed upon the poorly-designed appliances. To judge modern gas-fired equipment upon the basis of such obsolete equipment is like comparing coal oil lamps with modern electric lights.

In modern heating appliances, Natural Gas burns in a steel firebox. The invisible products of combustion go outdoors through a chimney—just as smoke does from any fire. In no way can the gas escape into your home. That is why gas fuel produces healthful heat.

In addition, Natural Gas burns clean without any smoke or dirt. It is the easiest fuel to control and you can have an even, warm temperature in your home without any effort on your part. Furthermore, it costs 50% less to use Natural Gas than manufactured gas. In fact, the cost of using it is even cheaper than the cost of using any other fuel.

For full details about heating equipment that burns the cheap Natural Gas, see a heating contractor or phone or call at our office.

RICHMOND UNION HIGH REINSTATED IN LEAGUE

ATHLETES WILL TRAIN FOR CONTESTS

There is great rejoicing at the Richmond Union high school today, for the school is once more a member of the Alameda county athletic league. Richmond and Hayward high school were reinstated yesterday by the officials of the league.

The motion that the two schools be reinstated in the league as recorded in the minutes of the directors' meeting was "that the schools that were unjustly suspended from the league be readmilled."

Richmond Union high school will probably compete in the coming track and baseball seasons, according to Principal B. X. Tucker. The schedules for these events had been arranged before Richmond's expulsion from the league. It is expected that the schedul will be retained as it was formerly.

Two Expelled

Richmond and Hayward high schools were expelled from the league because of acts of vandalism committed by pupils and graduates of the two schools. In the case of the local school, the culprits were not pupils attending the institution. However, according to league ruling, any act of vandalism committed by pupils, graduates or sympathizers of a school automatically ejects that school from the league. The act causing Richmond's expulsion was the destruction of electroliers on the school grounds of Hayward high school on the night of the Richmond-Hayward cage battle. Payment for the damage was later made by the culprits. It was the first league contest in which Richmond high had participated.

Richmond high's chances of remaining in the league were fairly firm until it was learned that members of the Hayward high student body had painted a water tank on the grounds of the Centerville high school prior to an athletic contest with that school. It was then found necessary that both schools be expelled from the Alameda county athletic league.

New Impetus

Sports at Richmond Union high school have now received a new impulse as a result of its reinstatement in the league. A rather short and unsatisfactory schedule had been arranged with a few nonmembers of the A. C. A. L. for the track and baseball seasons. However, if Richmond does play in the regular league spring schedule, sports at the local high school will reach a higher leve than ever before.

The athetic facilities at Richmond Union high school are rapidly being improved this spring. As soon as the rainy weather ends, work will be again started on the track and diamond. New jumping pits will be completed, and the erection of a backstop for the baseball field is being planned. Plans are being made for a Labor Day, on which the high school boys will carry out the necessary improvements. This Labor Day was formerly scheduled for Friday, but the date has been postponed because of the condition of the field.

HIGH TO VOTE ON SUITS FOR BASEBALL

The senate of the Richmond Union high school student body yesterday voted that the organization meet jointly as formerly instead of in separate houses.

It was also decided by the senate that the student body miscellaneous fund be appropriated toward purchasing baseball suits for the high school line. Byron Young presided over the meeting.

The assembly will vote on the same matter today. The assembly members met in small advisory groups during the senate meeting yesterday.

The meetins today and tomorrow are experiments for the purpose of finding public opinion on joint and separate meetings. The senate consists of seniors and high elevens, while the assembly is composed of sophomores and high juniors.

Voting is being held at the high school for the purpose of electing a vice-president of the student body for the remainder of the term. June Mills and Milton Belway are the candidates for office. The election will end today.

VETERAN DISAPPEARS

WICHITA, Kas.—R. D. Jarboe 701 Wheeler and Hagney building, as guardian, has requested the American Legion to help find George Winfield, a veteran, who disappeared from Wichita, Kas., about June 3, 1928. He is 40, five feet, eight inches, with brown hair slightly gray. He has compensation awaiting him.

4 NINES CERTAIN FOR STANDARD OIL LEAGUE

Four or six teams will be organized to take part in this year's Standard Oil Twilight league, league, according to plans formulated at a meeting of the employes of the Standard Oil plant yesterday. The four teams certain of entering the league are the barrel house, the refinery, the All-Standards and the mechanics. Two more teams may be formed if there are enough first-class athletes to go round.

Election of officers for this year's league was held at yesterday's meeting. Thomas Shea was chosen as president of the league, while Al Lilly was elected vice-president. Howard Flint was chosen for the position of treasurer, and George Shaw was named secretary and score keeper.

A committee was named to pick the most promising athletes for action on the league teams. A list of more than 130 names of athletes seeking positions on the teams was submitted at yesterday's meeting. The members of the committeen are Chick Autry, "Pop" Arlet, Jack Snavely, Charlie Fraine, and "Buzz" Whetzler.

The committee will report its choice of players at another employes' meeting next Monday. It will also be decided at that time whether the league will contain four or six teams.

Th league is expected to begin May 1, and will probably finish about the middle of August. The league will be divided into tw rounds, each team probably playing five times in each round. If only four squads enter the league, games will be played on Wednesday and Thursday of each week. The games will be held at five o'clock on the First street diamond.

Junior Cagers Win By Forfeit

The Longfellow Junior high school 105 and 95 pound cagers lost by forfeit to the loop squad of Roosevelt Junior high school yesterday.

In an inter-school cage series, the two lightweight Roosevelt aggregations conquered the Poets by large scores in both games of the series. Last night's unfought contests were only scheduled as practise games.

Competition in baseball between the two junior high schools is expected to start within several weeks. Tennis and swimming are also on the list for this semester's inter-school athletic competition.

Santa Fe Five To Play Visitors

The Richmond Santa Fe apprentices will offer opposition to the Southern Pacific cagers from Roseville March 15, in the Richmond union high schoolgymnasium.

The local Santa Fe athletes have made a big reputation for themselves, finishing in a tie for second place in this season's city league. Santa Fe has also competed in Santa Fe tournaments since the end of the local city league. The Richmond boys succeeded in defeating the Pueblo team at San Bernardino, but were later defeated by the Fort Madison outfit.

Night Football For Northwest

PORTLAND, Ore.,—Three members of the Northwest Football con ference probabl ywill play night games here next fall, if tentative plans of the Multnomah club materia'ize.

College of Puget Sound, Tacoma and Columbia, Portland, a non-conference team, probably will play under arc lights of the Multnomah stadium Sept. 27. Pacific, Forest Grove, Ore., and Whitman, Walla Walla both conference members, may met Oct. 31 in a night game.

Playing of games in Portland after the sun goes down will help financial conditions of the conference, it is believed, as the games will afford an opportunity to many fans to see their favorite sport who are unable to trek to the stadium in the afternoons.

DEBATERS FOR HI-Y SELECTED

Harman Jatta and Edwin Poole will represent the Richmond Boys Hi-Y in the Californiad debating tournament at Berkeley March 16, while Woodrow Snodgrass will represent the local Hi-Y in the oratory contest on the same date.

The boys who represent Richmond in the debating and oratorial contests competed last night at the Hi-Y meeting with several other aspirants for the honor.

The affirmative of the debate on the topic "Resolved—that Military Training Should Be Abolished in High Schools" was victorious at last night's debating competition. The affirmative was supported by Harman Jatta and Milton Belway. The negative was upheld by Edwin Poole and Fred O'Shima.

Woodrow Snodgrass and Walter Thomas competed in the oratorical contests. Snodgrass spoke on "World Brotherhood" while Thomas spoke on the "The Five Day Week."

The judges for the debating and oratory contests last night were Rev. C. G. Lindemann, Clayton D'Arcy, and Reed Bullock.

George Degnan presided over last night's meeting of the Boys' Hi-Y.

H. J. McCall, who spent 16 years as a missionary in South America, has been secured as the speaker for next week's meeting of the Boys' Hi-Y club.

Husky Cagers Leave For South

SEATTLE, March 4.—UP—True to tradition the University of Washington took 1 3players tonight on its journey to Los Angeles where the Huskies will meet the University of Southern California basketball team for the Pacific Coast inter-collegiate championship.

Thursday Cage Games Postponed

Petaluma's girl cagers will be unable to make the trip to Richmond tomorrow night to meet the Richmond Y. L. I. in the local high school gmnasium.

As a result of the cancelling of the girls' games, contests scheduled for tomorrow night between the Garfinkle All-Stars and the Hutton Brokers and between the Richmond 145-pound All-Stars and the high school cagers are also cancelled.

Tomorrow night's games were scheduled to end the local basketball season.

20 Penalties In Ice Hockey Game

OAKLAND, March 4.— UP—Twenty penalties were recorded during the California League ice hockey contest here to[illegible] between Oakland and San Francisco which ended in a 2 to 2 tie.

Y CAGERS TO PLAY TONIGHT

Two fast cage contests may be expected at the Richmond Y. M. C. A. gymnasium tonight when the Salvation Army athletes of San Francisco tangle with the local Y. M. C. A. 110 and 120 pounders.

The Salvation Army boys have gained quite a reputation on the other side of the bay, and they ought to give the Richmondites plenty of opposition in tonight's battles.

The 110 pound contest is scheduled to begin at 7:15 o'clock, while the 120 pound class will start at 8:15.

Tonight's games will probably be the last of the present Y. M. C. A. cage season in Richmond.

The GREEN GODDESS

by LOUISE JORDAN MILN

Copyright, 1922, by Frederick A. Stokes Company

"The Green Goddess," starring George Arliss, is a Warner Bros. Vitaphone picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Major Anthony Crespin and his wife, Lucilla, are taken from Dehra Dun to Pahari to visit their children in Dr. Basil Traherne's airplane. Losing his way in a fog, he is forced to land in the inaccessible and inhospitable kingdom of Rukh. The natives are hostile but the Raja receives them with seeming kindness. But when he learns that three native Rukhians are to be executed in India in a few days for a political murder, and tells them they are his brothers, the three Europeans begin to fear for their safety. The Raja takes them to his palace where they are separated.

CHAPTER XVII

THE man had come in noiselessly carrying a centerpiece for the dinner table. He put it down and turned to go, as he had come, but it was then that Crespin had seen, and Traherne had heard.

"Hullo!" Crespin hailed him. "Hullo! What's your name? Just come here a minute, will you?"

"Meaning me, sir?" Watkins advanced a few steps, with a touch of covert insolence.

"Yes, you, Mr.—? Mr. —?" Crespin said, involuntarily speaking with a touch of contempt.

"Watkins is my name, sir."

"Right-o, Watkins. Can you tell us where we are, Watkins?"

"They calls the place Rukh, sir."

But Crespin persisted, "Yes, yes, we know that. But where is Rukh?"

"Behold the Paris model!"

"I understand these mountains is called the 'Imalayas, sir."

"Damn it, sir, we don't want a lesson in geography!"

"No, sir?" Watkins seemed surprised. "My mistake, sir."

"Major Crespin means that we want to know," Traherne intervened, "how far we are from the nearest point in India."

"I really couldn't say, sir. Not so very far, I dessay, as the crow flies."

"Unfortunately we're not in a position to fly with the crow," Traherne retorted. "How long does the journey take?"

"They tell me it takes about three weeks to Cashmere."

"They tell you!" Crespin almost snarled. "Surely you must remember how long it took you?"

"No, sir," Watkins said, something far from meekness in his shifty eyes. "Excuse me, sir—I've never been in India."

"Not been in India?" Crespin was openly incredulous. "I was just thinking, as I looked at you, that I seemed to have seen you before."

"Not in India," Watkins said quickly. "We might 'ave met in England, but I don't call to mind having that pleasure."

Crespin was angry at that impertinence. "But, if you haven't been in India, how the hell did you get here?"

"I came with 'Is 'Ighness, sir, by way of Tashkent," Watkins explained glibly. "All our dealings with Europe is by way of Russia."

"But it's possible to get to India direct," Traherne broke in, "and not by way of central Asia?"

"Oh, yes, it's done, sir," Watkins admitted; "but I'm told there are some very tight places to negotiate—"

"Difficult traveling for a lady, eh?" Traherne asked, wishing to keep the man talking, on the chance of even one useful word that might be let slip.

"Next door to himpossible, I should guess, sir."

Crespin groaned. "A nice lookout, Traherne!" Then he turned to Watkins with, "Tell me, my man—is His Highness—h'm—married?"

"Oh, yessir—very much so, sir."

"Children?"

"He has fifteen sons, sir."

"He said," added Traherne, "the men accused of assassinating a political officer were his brothers—"

"Did 'e say that, sir?" the man asked, evidently startled out of his well trained impersonality.

"Didn't you hear him? What did he mean?" Traherne said it carefully, not as if too much interested.

"I'm sure I couldn't say, sir," Watkins said colorlessly. "'Is 'Ighness is what you'd call a very playful gentleman, sir."

"But," Traherne insisted, "I don't see the joke in saying that."

"No, sir? P'raps Is 'Ighness'll explain, sir."

There was a pause—the English "sahibs" busy each with his own thoughts, the English servant still, and patiently waiting, apparently interested in nothing on earth.

Crespin broke the pause. Something the Raja of Rukh had said, down there by the temple, scarcely had struck him at the moment, but he had remembered it persistently, and the more he'd thought of it the more it had rankled. He went at it now, "Your master spoke of visits from European ladies—do they come from Russia?" he questioned.

"From various parts, I understand, sir," the man replied discreetly, but added tonelessly, "Mostly from Paris."

"Any here now?" Crespin asked roughly.

"I really couldn't say, sir."

"They don't dine with His Highness?" Traherne asked crisply.

"Oh, no, sir. 'Is 'Ighness sometimes sups with them."

"And my wife—Mrs. Crespin—?" Crespin began miserably.

"Make your mind easy, sir. The lady won't meet any hundesirable characters, sir. I give strict orders to the—female what took charge of the lady."

"She is to be trusted?" Traherne swung round as he spoke.

"Habsolutely, sir. She is—in a manner of speakin'—my wife, sir."

Traherne was neither amused by them nor interested in Watkins' matrimonial ventures. "But now look here, Watkins, you say we're three weeks away from Cashmere—yet the Raja knew of the sentence passed on these subjects of his, who were tried only three days ago. How do you account for that?"

"I can't, sir. All I can say is, there's queer things goes on here."

"Queer things? What do you mean?"

"Well, sir," came the slow, provoking answer, "them priests you know—they goes in a lot for what 'Is 'Ighness calls magic—"

"Oh, come, Watkins—you don't believe in that!" Dr. Traherne jibed impatiently.

"Well, sir p'raps not," the English valet said slyly. "I don't, not to say believe in it. But there's queer things goes on. I can't say no more, nor I can't say no less. If you'll excuse me, sir, I must just run my eye over the dinner table. 'Is 'Ighness will be here directly."

Clearly there was no more to be pulled out of Watkins. They waited in moody silence until Watkins noiselessly left the room.

"That fellow's either a cunning rascal or a damned fool," Crespin muttered. "Which do you think?"

"I don't believe he's the fool he'd like us to take him for." Then as if some endurance had snapped, Traherne flung towards the door.

"I say," Crespin halted him, "where are you going?"

"I'm going to find her!" Traherne said roughly.

"Sit down!" Crespin ordered. "That's up to me—if I think it either necessary or wise; which I don't! It's not up to you!"

"It's up to a man!" Basil Traherne said hotly, with a level look in Crespin's eyes.

"Come back!" Antony Crespin commanded. "You—"

A moment more and they would have grappled each other's throats.

But the door opened softly, and the woman they loved came into the room.

CHAPTER XVIII

SWOLLEN and quivered with anger as they were, they both were startled at her beauty.

"Ah," Traherne said, pulling himself together with an almost heroic effort, "here is Mrs. Crespin!"

Whatever fear was curdling the bloods of the men, the Englishwoman who shared their danger, and stood in a graver one of her own, seemed unperturbed and carefree, radiant and superbly lovely.

Crespin's eyes filled, and Basil Traherne caught his breath painfully. Neither ever had seen her look as she looked now. Some lure of the East, some soul of the East, had transformed the girl of a Surrey garden into an Eastern queen—though perhaps she never before had looked, or felt, so intensely English.

She stood and smiled at them. And the eyes and hearts of two men leapt to her—and she seemed to them both the core of all desire, and each thought her perfect, a human flower needing no added perfume, no other beauty of texture, tint or outline.

Lucilla Crespin looked from one to the other, and smiled. She had not caught their quarreling as she came in, for the sinking sun shone hard in her eyes, and their backs were to it. She took a few steps towards them, holding out her draperies as gleefully as a child. "Behold the Paris model!"

"My eye, Lu, what a ripping frock!" was Antony's comment.

WANT ADS GET RESULTS IN THE RECORD-HERALD

HOOVER LAUDED BY SENATOR IN SPEECH

WASHINGTON, Mar. 4—(U.P.)—President Hoover's administration replied through Secretary of Labor Davis today to charges of administration inertia causing unemployment and laid the blame at the Senate's door.

"Distressing unemployment" of perhaps 3,000,000 out of the nation's 46,000,000 wage-earners was admitted by Davis in a written interview, which went on to say that "delays in tariff legislation are more responsible today for creating unemployment than any other factor."

Davis' statement was issued after a cabinet meeting in which the president brought up the unemployment situation as agitated by Senator Wagner, Dem., N. Y., and other Senators yesterday.

Tells Program

Davis said the administration, for the first time in the history of panics, has held unemployment to less than one-half that of previous depressions. He pointed to the construction program, and said work is being provided in a way that should relieve most of the unemployment "within the very near future."

Senator Brookhart's proposal for a $50,000,000 fund to relieve unemployment was opposed by Davis, who said the American workingmen wanted honest employment, not a "dole." Such a fund as a dole, he pointed out would provide only $1 a week for 18 weeks for the three million out of work.

In the Senate, meantime, Senator Fuss, Rep., Ohio, one of the administration leaders, reviewed Hoover's first year in office and said the high point was the president's prompt action to prevent panic after the Wall street crash. If anyone can succeed in the present attempt to stop the economic cycle of depression, Fess said, it is Hoover.

Drop Shown

Davis' statement, give nin answer to requests as to what he thought of Wagner's Senate talk, said in part:

"While unemployment for the week of Feb. 17 as compared with Feb. 10 showed a drop of three-tenths of one per cent, the situation today is greatly improved over the low point of last December.

"The construction program as worked out by President Hoover exceeds 1929 and is having its effect. The Secretary of Commerce has announced a seven billion dollar program for the government and other civic agencies.

"Senator Wagner's own proposals are for more federal employment agencies and more statistics, and as I see it, hoped for cures of the result of further crashes. I am in accord with them. However, none of these things create jobs right now. For what they are worth, the present administration recommended necessary expansion in employment agencies and statistics through the department of labor budget, not yet passed by the Senate.

Bill Held

"But of far more importance, as I see it, is the urgent necessity for the public buildings bill which passed the House, the appropriations for public works in the deficiency bill now awaiting Senate action.

"But above all, the workers of the country need the passage of the tariff act to remove uncertainty and allow the workers to make in our own factories the hundreds of millions of dollars worth of goods now coming in by import. In fact, the delays in tariff legislation are more responsible today for creating unemployment than any other factor.

"Push the building program, pass the tariff bill, and our workers will find employment."

Note Writer Now Under Observation

LOS ANGELES, March 4.—UP—After Tad Jones, 37, had tried for three hours to present a defense against charges that he disturbed the peace in sending love notes to Aimee Semple McPherson and loitering around Angelus Temple, he was ordered to the psycopathic ward for observation. Jones' case was heard by Municipal Judge Caryl Sheldon.

FLOOD REVEALS NEED OF ADEQUATE STORM SEWER HERE

"An insufficient or polluted water supply is fatal to the growth of any city; it is reflected in health reports, business apathy, and industrial stagnation and immediate rejection of city and community by executives seeking locations for new factories or branches.

"Such conditions as would be tolerated in a small city for collection and disposal of sewage are impossible even for consideration in larger cities, because of the amount of such sewage.

Many Systems

"The sanitary sewers of this city represent the cumulative results of between eighty and one hundred separate sewer plans and constructions. But few of the systems were planned for the ultimate development of the district being sewered, and only a very small number in recent years have allowed for accommodations of sewage from topographically tributary areas."

In discussing the dumping of sewage into San Francisco bay, not only by this city but by dozens of others, the report has this to say.

"That there is ample water in San Francisco bay to properly dispose of the domestic and trade waste occasioned by the present surrounding population is easy to see, but unless proper attention is paid to the flow of the currents, it will be impossible to keep the water immediately adjacent to the shore from becoming unpleasant.

Sewage Treatment

"The proposed plan as presented should insure satisfactory disposal for many years, in fact, until that time when the complete development of the proposed inner harbor shall have caused such new tidal and wind effects that treatment of sewage has become necessary. The proposed outlet is so designed that it may be extended to give better opportunity for mixing should it be required. It is well to bear in mind that there is constant pressure being exerted to have all sewage at all places treated, screened, or otherwise cleansed of solids before emptying it into harbors, streams or lakes."

All of the flood conditions which exited in Richmond yesterday, and those dangers set forth in the above paragraphs would be eliminated by the installation of the new proposed sewer system.

Heavy Cost

To the uninitiated the figure of $1,229,000, the estimated cost of the proposed system, seems almost prohibitive. But the large area to be benefitted would cut the cost per lot down to a very small figure considering the benefits to be derived by the city as a whole.

The area included in the proposed district is bounded on the west by First street and the Santa Fe railway right of way; on the north by the northerly boundry of the city; on the east by Forty-second street north of Cutting boulevard and by Twenty-seventh street south of Cutting boulevard; on the south by the bay shore line.

There are 27,500 lots in this district which are privately owned, some belonging to the city of Richmond, others to the grammar school district and still others to the high school district. These lots would be assessed at the rate the work. This would provide $1,201,300 of the required cost. The remainder is distributed over 262 acres of land in acreage. This acreage includes tideland lots, highlands, publicly owned and railroad property. The acreage would provide a revenue of $27,700.

The city's direct portion of the tax would amount to $11,000 while the grammar school district would be assessed $14,000 and the high school district $5000.

The proposed system would hook up with the present sanitary system, inadequate in many instances. It would also eliminate the two sumps, one at A street and Nevin avenue and the other at Eighth street and Cutting boulevard.

Material Required

Here is the major portion of the material which would be required in the construction which, it is estimated, would require about one year:

71,846 feet of vitrified clay sewer pipe ranging in size from four inch to 36 inch pipe. Some of this pipe would be supported by timber cradles and concrete jackets due to the unstable ground conditions such as would be encountered in the inner harbor sections.

41,069 feet of certified cast concrete pipe ranging in size from 15 inches to 72 inches. Some of this pipe would have to be supported by a concrete cradle on green piles due to unstable ground conditions.

Storm Sewers

3540 feet of monolithis concrete sewer running up to a maximum in size of eight feet by eight feet. This is the major storm sewer which would carry off the heavy flood waters.

376 curb inlets of different designs to pick up water and throw it into sewers. These would be of concrete construction with grating covers, etc. They are all designed to take the maximum flow of water with the smallest opening and are patterned after the latest accepted and tested patterns.

221 manholes of seven different designs.

20 lampholes for inspecting the sewers.

3 diversion structures.

4 junction boxes.

3400 feet of underdrain.

980 cubic yards of concerte.

160 yards of rock fill.

6600 yards of ordinary fill.

3600 lineal feet of green piling.

5600 feet of creosote piling.

Report Praised

The report which was compiled after months of study has won the praise of Harold F. Gray, internationally known consulting engineer who stated that the entire report and recommendations were compiled according to the latest approved methods.

A great deal of technical data is contained in the report showing the necessity of the sewer system.

The system has been worked out to provide for the latest accepted sanitary disposal of sewage. The outfall into the bay would be 25 feet under low water. Under this plan the dispersion of the sewage before it reaches the surface would be practically negligible. A surface outlet is also provided in the outfall system so that in case of flood conditions th emain outlet would not become clogged.

Semi-Automatic

The entire outlet system is of semi-automatic construction so that the amount of flow would control the outlet.

A change of the position of the outlet will be taken of the flow of the tide in disposing of the sewage so that objectionable matter not immediately absorbed by the water will not be deposited on the bay shore.

Members of the city council have been provided with copies of the report which is well illustrated with maps, charts and pictures, showing not only present conditions but the proposed system with the effect it will have in bringing about sanitary conditions in this city.

Although Richmond has always enjoyed the best of health conditions, the sewage situation at the present time is such that it may at any time cause untild damage, not only to property but to life as well.

Curiosity Has Tragic Ending

PORTLAND, Ore., March 4.—UP—His curiosity aroused by a fire siren, N. L. Bost followed firemen to the Willamette river bank to learn that a boy had been drowned.

Questioning developed that the boy was his son—Norman Arthur Bost, 4.

The father recognized his son's inseparable playmate, Jack Daly, 3 1-2, in a crowd. The lad was crying and told how Norman had fallen off a log raft where they had been playing. A suggestion of Norman's that they "go far, far away today" prompted the trip of the youngsters to the riverfront.

The lady's body is being sought by the harbor patrol.

ALICE WHITE IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Mar. 4—(U.P.)—With a brilliant leopard skin coat which barely covered her flapper-length knee dress, Alice White, film flapper, and her "boy friend," Sydney Bartlett, arrived today in Chicago.

Alice would say nothing about her romance with the "boy friend" who was said to be a broker but described himself as a free lance actor since completing a contract with Metro-Goldyn-Mayer.

The two came to Chicago to visit Bartlett's mother, he said, taking advantage of a few days of rest in the tiny screen star's work.

"We probably will return to the coast Sunday," Bartlett said.

"Wedding?" he said. "You never can tell about them. You see we haven't much time."

Wheat Embargo Threatened By Farm Board

WASHINGTON, Mar. 4—(U.P.)—Heavy congestion of wheat in terminals may bring the government to ask railroads to embargo shipments to terminals, Chairman Legge of the farm board said today. The board is seeking to avoid such drastic action, however.

The board's own purchases before its recent decision to purchase only at the market price contributed considerably to the brimming grain elevators of the wheat concentration centers, he said.

Legge and agricultural secretary Hyde acted today to intervene in the Senate's proposed grain investigation, by asking action on the Nye inquiry resolution be delayed until they can appear, Chairman McNary of the agriculture committee told them to appear before the committee Friday.

Purchase Seen

The agriculture committee decided also to call the American minister to China, Nelson Johnson, and chairman John Barton Payne of the Red Cross for advice on a bill to authorize purchase of 25,000,000 barrels of American wheat or flour by the farm board for shipment to China for famine relief.

Legge, in discussing the possibility of a wheat embargo, made another defense of the decision of the farm board advisory conference in Chicago in stopping its attempt to peg wheat above the market price.

Legge said the Chicago order, which involves only the stabilization corporation, does not affect the loan value status of wheat. Loans on grain, made exclusively through another farm board agency, the Farmers' National Grain corporation, will continue to be made independently on the market price of wheat, he indicated.

One reason given for the Chicago action was that it was placing millers at an unfair advantage, forcing them in some localities to buy grain at the higher government price while others bought lower at the market price. Flour from such points came in competition, Legge said.

The board chairman said an embargo would be necessary "unless the situation improves." The farmers have more grain left on their farms than the terminals can handle, and the only alternative is to forbid railroads to unload at the terminals, unless conditions change.

The gas from Mortemoth crystals not only protects your furniture for a long time, but contact with it kills all moths, their eggs and their dangerous larvae in furniture which is already infested.

The proper method of using Mortemoth crystals is to tie them in small sacks, and to place these sacks down in the channel of the piece, as deeply as possible, behind the cushions, so that, upon expansion, the gas will spread and fill the spring units in the back and in the bottom of the piece.
